Persecution of Union Men

We have repeatedly noticed the disposition of the "sore-heads," or so-called Union men of this State, to whine over the alleged indignities and cruelties to which they are subjected. The Standard, and a few others, would produce the impression that there is no security or peace for such men, and that they are the objects of daily and unceasing persecutions. Of course there is no shadow of foundation for such statements. They are uttered for the simple and base purpose of drawing down upon the heads of our devoted people the full avalanche of Radical malignity and vindictiveness. They recognize the fact that they—the authors of these libels,—have forfeited the respect of their own neighbors by their course of intolerance and illiberality, and they would avenge themselves by invoking the furies of hate and "radicalism" to overwhelm and destroy their own fellow-citizens. To such depths of degradation and infamy can men sometimes descend!

We have, within a few days past, come into possession of a fact, which illustrates the whole matter, and exposes the unscrupulous character of these slanderers. Recently, the President of the United States wrote to Gov. Worth, stating that he had received a petition signed by a large number of citizens of Camden, praying for protection against the persecution of which they were the victims. The petition further alleged that these same men were being prosecuted in the Courts, and that it was impossible for them to secure justice. The President requested Gov. Worth to institute an investigation into the matter, and to report the facts at Washington.

Gov. Worth, accordingly, wrote to Judge Brooks and Col. Perches, authorizing those gentlemen to make full enquiry into the complaints of these individuals. The latter received the commission just as he was upon the eve of leaving for this City, and too late for action, but wrote to Judge Brooks, requesting him to make the required investigation. Judge Brooks did so, promptly, fairly and thoroughly. Upon an inspection of the records of the courts of Camden county, he found that only two of the number had been in any way before those courts,—and those two had been indicted, the one for larceny and the other for fornication and adultery!

Now, as it is alleged by the Standard, and others, that such men as these have been prosecuted for acts committed during the war, in the service of the country, and because they were Union men, we leave it to the world to judge whether the Government employed them in any such acts as those for which these creatures were convicted!

As our old friend, Mr. Caldwell, of Burke, has uttered some dismal jeremiads upon the door of the Convention upon the same general subject, we take the liberty of calling his attention to the facts in this case, as embodied in the report of Judge Brooks to the Governor.—We are sure that we need not illustrate the subject by any comment of our own.

"Impudence and Falsehood."

Amid the rage of the editor of the Standard, on yesterday, he failed to notice the point of our article to which he replies. Perhaps, in his blindness, he did not see it. We, therefore, reproduce it. Will the editor of the Standard either disprove the allegation or justify his course!

The Sentinel on the 29th, said:
"It is well known that the position taken by President Johnson, by Ex-Governor Holden, and by the Convention, was that only those persons in the State could be considered loyal, and were allowed to vote and hold office in the State, who had been pardoned by the President and taken the required oath. Our people quietly acquiesced in this. No man was inclined to vote unless he had in his possession the evidence of his pardon. And the Convention, in order to give this privilege to the largest number, passed an ordinance, authorizing all persons to vote who might be announced as having been pardoned by the Provisional Governor, up to the day of election."

Now, it is evidence, that on the 30th. day of October last, and, if we remember correctly, at other times between that and the day of election, the Ex-Provisional Governor did cause to be officially published in the Standard newspaper, and others, the names of five hundred persons at least, whom the Ex-Provisional Governor officially declared had been pardoned by the President, and that they were authorized to vote, on the day of election, for Governor, &c. It has since been ascertained that, perhaps, not one of the persons so published had been pardoned by the President,—many of them have not received their pardons to this day, and those who have been pardoned find their pardons dated days and months subsequent to the day of the election, in October last. Will the people call this "impudence and falsehood," or what!

Moreover, we have heard it asserted as positively true, that before, and on the day of election, the Ex-Provisional Governor privately, but did not publicly announce, certificates to persons, that they had been pardoned, upon a theory of which they went to the polls and voted, who had not then been pardoned by the President, and who did not receive their pardons until after Gov. Worth entered upon the office of Governor. What is this! Is it "impudence," or "falsehood," or what! Is it strange that people who live in glass-houses will throw stones!

We entertain the utmost respect and reverence for the Christian religion. We respect and honor the sincere Christian minister. But we have no respect for the pretender, the hypocrite, the wolf in sheep's clothing. We know one who is a more thorough and a more unscrupulous party hack than the Senior Editor of the Standard. We have never known a more malicious person than he is. We know him well. We want neither his friendship nor his prayers. God help him, and save him at last from the moral quagmire in which he is rapidly sinking!

The above is only one of the exquisitely rich, racy, malicious and vindictive paragraphs, found in the last leader of the Standard. That article is a faithful daguerotype of the heart of its author. "We know him well." Yes, and we know W. W. Holden a little better than he knows himself. Our estimate of poor human nature has been sadly damaged since we found him out. We thought better of it, before we knew him well.

"We entertain the utmost respect and reverence for the Christian religion." Yes, and you have a very queer way of showing it. After having been a member of the Methodist Church for years, you abandoned your religious profession, and have since abused its ministers whenever they have crossed your political path. You have a very high respect and reverence for the Christian religion, and yet the doors of its churches are seldom darkened by you, and you speak contemptuously of its professors and ministers, whenever you can make political capital or gratify a private revenge. You have no respect for the pretender, the hypocrite, the wolf in sheep's clothing. Certainly not! You have ceased to have any respect for yourself or for society.

"We want neither his (Mr. Pell's) friendship nor his prayers." Certainly not. The friendship of gentlemen you do not court, any longer than you find you cannot use them for your own purposes. "Nor his prayers." But we shall nevertheless not cease to pray for you, until we find out it is an offence to God.

Finally, we regard the opinion of W. W. Holden of us, or of any gentleman, as we do the idle wind or the barking of a dog, nor care we a fig for the random kicks of a blind donkey.

"You, Mr. Pell, who talk about wisdom and virtue, and assume to be wiser and better than other people—where are the evidences of your charity, your love for the country, your consistency, your honesty, or your fidelity even to the religion you profess. Fidelity indeed!—For long years you lauded Jefferson Davis and his prime minister—that monster of moral iniquity, Judah P. Benjamin—while the latter was writing, and both were issuing proclamations for the very existence of Jesus Christ was ignored! You bore this in silence—you, a preacher of the Gospel—or but feebly protested against it.—This person Benjamin cast the Saviour from his mediatorial seat—he denied him, and you, because party ordered it and fanaticism sanctioned it, groaned and said amen!"—Standard.

There is not a word of truth in the above.—We neither trumpet our own charity, or love of country, or consistency, or honesty or fidelity to our religion. Our record is before the world and before God.

Providential necessity, not choice, has placed us in our present position. What Providence wanted with us in this position, except to expose the villainy of W. W. Holden, we have not been able to discover. We confess it is a dirty business, but what our hands find to do, we must do it with our might."

The editor of the Standard knows that we never gave our sanction and approval to the policy of the administration of Jefferson Davis, though we admitted our obligation, as a good citizen, to support it and obey the laws, while the de facto government existed; and always felt bound to speak respectfully and kindly of the ruler of our people.

Of Mr. Benjamin, the editor of the Standard knows, we never approved as a member of the Cabinet. As to the omission in the proclamations, the editor of the Standard knows that the first remonstrance made against it was made by us, when editor of the Albion. The entire statement of the Standard is a fabrication.

Holden and Brownlow

The Vicksburg Herald is responsible for the following:
"Ex-Gov. Holden, of North Carolina, was at Nashville last week. What are Billy Holden and Brownlow up to now?"

Our cotemporary, the Herald, is mistaken. Gov. Holden has not been absent from this city for some time. The only way that the Ex-Gov. could have been with his confederate, "that sterling old patriot," Gov. Brownlow, was in spirit. In that regard they are, doubtless, now very often together. They formerly abused each other with a vengeance, but now they are monstrous thick. They are plotters of evil to the people, and in spirit they are one.

The Raleigh Standard is in favor of the Radical programme of disfranchisement and proscription.

The Raleigh Standard advised the Government to offer a reward of $25,000 for Gov. Vance.

The Raleigh Standard howls for the blood of Jefferson Davis.

The Raleigh Standard, in its last issue, seeks to prejudice Major Jno. H. Gee before the Military Commission now engaged in his trial, by falsely charging that "five thousand Union prisoners were tortured and starved to death at Salisbury."

J. MULLALLY, Esq., New York, the editor of that fearless paper, the Metropolitan Record, has just issued Bill Arp's letter in a handsome duodecimo volume, with numerous illustrations. It is needless to commend these letters to Southern readers; the good sense, caustic wit, and genuine humor which mark them have caused them to be read throughout the land. Mr. Mullally furnishes the work at $1.50 for plain binding, and $1.75 for richer binding, and gilt edges.

STATE CONVENTION.

ADJOURNED SESSION.

THURSDAY, May 31, 1866.

The Convention was called to order at 10 o'clock A. M.

The Journal of yesterday was read and approved.

Mr. Wilson, from the Committee on the Stay Law, reported an ordinance to amend the act of the General Assembly entitled "an act to alter the jurisdiction of the Courts and the rules of pleading therein." Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Jones, of Davidson, for the Committee on Salaries and Fees, reported an ordinance to amend the act of the General Assembly, entitled "Salaries and Fees." Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Dockery, for the Committee on Constitutional Amendments not otherwise referred, reported back an ordinance in relation to imprisonment for debt, and an ordinance to regulate the payment of interest, recommending that they be not passed.

Mr. Wicks, from a select Committee, reported a substitute for the ordinance to secure the rights of citizens in the navigable waters of the State, recommending its passage. Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Tugan introduced an ordinance to grant to the citizens of the County of Polk the power of voting with the District or County to which they are attached, in the election of members of the General Assembly.

Mr. Moore, of Wake, from the Committee to revise the Constitution, reported a substitute for the ordinance concerning debts of the State his member contracted.

Mr. Givison introduced "an ordinance to authorize an exchange of State bonds in certain cases." Referred to a select committee.

Mr. Phillips, a resolution to have six copies of the abstract of the census of 1860 printed for the use of each member of the Convention.—Adopted upon a suspension of the rules.

Mr. Mebane, an ordinance to incorporate the Co-operative Association No. 1, at Company's Shops.

McLvor, an ordinance to provide for the passage of fish in the navigable waters of the State.

Mr. Simmons, a resolution that after the 2nd. of June next, the Convention will not consider matters of a purely legislative character, except upon recommendations of the Governor of the State. Lies over under rule.

The special order, viz: an ordinance amending the Constitution, on the basis of Representation, was postponed, on motion of Mr. Phillips, to be considered in its proper connection with the amended Constitution.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The Convention resumed the consideration of the amended Constitution, the question recurring on the amendment offered by Mr. Caldwell, of Guilford, to section 9, article 1st. of the Declaration of Rights.

Mr. Moore, of Wake, still approved the end contemplated by the amendment, but had arrived at no satisfactory conclusion as to the terms in which the amendment should be made. He preferred the question to be passed over for the present.

Mr. Mebane offered the following amendment as a substitute for the amendment pending, viz: "The Legislature may, however, provide for a trial, with the right of appeal, for misdemeanors."

Mr. Caldwell, of Guilford, accepted the proposed substitute, and addressed the Convention in its favor.

Mr. Eaton opposed the amendment in any shape. It proposed to allow the General Assembly to deprive citizens of the right of trial by jury in case of misdemeanor. The term misdemeanors embraced a large class of offences, many of which are of the gravest character—including all known to the law, with the exception of capital felonies; perjury, subornation of perjury, mayhem, assault with intent to kill or commit rape, bigamy, larceny, receiving stolen goods, &c. How then should this jurisdiction (proposed to be conferred on a single justice) be defined or restricted? The term misdemeanors was very vague—was not susceptible of satisfactory definition. Mr. E. then adverted to the irresponsibility of the proposed trial and their liability to be influenced by improper considerations, to the prejudice of the poor and friendless.

Mr. Phillips said that the section proposed to be amended guaranteed only a personal right, a right which, under the decision of the Supreme Court, a man could never waive. It secured the sacred right of obtaining expensive justice through a cumbersome and complicated machinery. Adverting to the annoyance, delay and expense, consequent upon the existing law requiring trial by jury in all cases of misdemeanor, Mr. P. said that the Recorder of the City of London would dispose of more cases in a few moments than a county court could in a year. If this rule of jury trial prevailed in large communities, many cases would not be reached before the defendants died of old age.

The amendment was still further discussed. Messrs. Dick, Brown, of Caswell, Conland, Boyden and Moore, of Wake, supporting it, and Messrs. Eaton, Winston and McCorkle, opposing its adoption.

The question recurring on the amendment as amended, the following substitute was offered by Moore of Wake, viz:
"Provided, nevertheless, that Courts may be established and held in cities and incorporated towns, and at the Court Houses, in which may be tried, without the intervention of grand and petit juries, as shall be prescribed by law, all misdemeanors except such whereof the punishment is or shall be other than imprisonment, whenever the accused shall elect to be so tried. Provided, that in all cases where the party may be imprisoned or fined above fifty dollars, he may appeal to any Court having jurisdiction of the case."

Pending this amendment, a communication was received from his Excellency, the Governor, relative to the Geological Survey, State title to certain Swamp Lands, &c., which, on motion of Mr. Moore, of Wake, was referred to a select committee.

The Convention resumed the unfinished business.

The question recurring on the amendment, offered by Mr. Moore, of Wake, to the amendment now pending, on motion of Mr. Logan, the Convention adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow.

[The Reporter was made to say, in yesterday's report, that Mr. Walkup opposed the object proposed in the amendment of Mr. Caldwell, of Guilford, to sec. 9. art. 1st. of the Declaration of Rights. The report should have said approved, instead of opposed.]

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, May 30.

The State Department learns that no Austrians have been sent to Mexico, and that none will be sent.

The National colors are at half-mast from the Department and other public buildings to-day, in honor to the memory of Gen. Scott.

The clerical force of the Treasury Department are engaged in transferring the deposits of disbursing officers from the National Banks to the U. S. Treasury and sub-Treasuries.

Deceased Members of the Convention.

REMARKS of Mr. McRoy, of Sampson, upon the resolutions of respect to the memories of members of the Convention who have died since its last session.

MR. PRESIDENT.—In obedience to my inclinations and in respect to the memories of our departed fellow-members, I cannot refrain from adding my testimony to the deserved resolutions offered by the honorable member from Carteret, (and the eulogiums pronounced by the gentlemen who have preceded me.) Thrown together by the meeting of this body, they each and all left a deep impress upon our minds and affections, sweet as the intercourse between friend and friend, and lasting as memory. The deep piety of a Nicholson, the genial heart and merry smile of a Sanders, the sterling worth of a Harahan, and the devoted friendship of a Faison, are virtues on which the memory loves to dwell.

Each had his peculiar virtues, calling forth the fond esteem, generous appreciation and deep affection of many friends. When last we met, the glow of health mantled their cheeks, and little did we suspect that the Destroyer had marked them for his own. But such is life, and to-day we are called upon to pay to their memory that tribute deserved by a life of usefulness commensurate with their sphere of duty. In their death the church, this body, and their confiding constituents, have sustained a loss, grievous and irreparable.

I would not invade the province of those gentlemen, whose right it is to portray the virtues of their friends. Coming from the same localities, enjoying the pleasures and advantages of a life long intercourse, they can and will speak with truthfulness, feeling and in the language of friendship of their own departed dead. Of them I could not say less. And now, with mournful pleasure, will I speak of him—whose virtues, to me, are best known and whose name is so common in every household of my immediate constituency.

When the war cloud had passed and bloodshed ceased in the land, when the passion had subsided and men looked around to see if anything could be saved from the ruin of our country, happy country when the President of the United States called together this body, there came with me, in obedience to this call, my honored colleague, Thomas I. Faison, one of the subjects of these resolutions. With me, from this stand point, did he view the wreck, and no truer heart heaved responsive sighs, while viewing the wide spread desolation. And while thus striving to raise the sombre curtain which veiled the future in darkness and gloom, he yielded to none, but dared "go far as him who would go farthest" to again free his State from those hateful bonds which the dark fortunes of war had subjugated, with all its horrors, had twined around it. In the honesty of his heart, he dared do what'er his country's cause demanded, and, with this holiest of feelings, he laid his price, his wealth, his all, as a sacrifice upon her altar. After casting his vote, in response to the call made by the clerk, he turned to me and said, "That vote, though it beggars me and mine, is given to purchase peace for the suffering people of my dear old State. And bear witness that, with the same fortitude with which I have given the toil of a lifetime, could I give my life, if my country's cause demanded the sacrifice."

Mr. President, few men sacrificed more for the cause of Southern independence, and none yielded more cheerfully to the sacrifices demanded at his hands. The sick soldier often blessed his name, and oft on weary marches did he share the soldier's couch and cheer him on while ears of home and loved ones left behind would startle his tears down his sun-brown cheek. Though too old for service, it was his delight to share the hardships of the camp; and from his purse, his store and sympathy to aid any and all with whom he came in contact. Thus causing the needy to feel that one sympathetic nature yet lived, one generous soul yet survived, and that life, like the desert, had its oases!

His devotion to the cause of education gave him a high position among those who knew him best. As a neighbor, he was always kind; as a companion, he was genial, and a friend, he was ever generous and devoted. His desire seemed to be to extend aid to the suffering, and once misfortune befell a countryman he would reach down to raise him to his proper level once more. These qualities of heart led his countrymen to honor him. For twenty years he filled the most important office in the gift of the country. After this, he filled various responsible trusts to the satisfaction of his constituents. A member of the Convention of '55, State Senator and a member of this body, his votes were always given with a firmness of purpose and an eye single to the interests of his immediate constituents and the welfare of his entire State.

His liberal views on the subject of internal improvements led him to espouse any feasible scheme, whether for the benefit of the East or the West. His soil was large enough to take in his entire State, from the fertile soil and sluggish streams of the coast, to the bracing air, the rippling rills and cloud-capped mountains of the West.

But alas! his career of usefulness is over, and beneath his native soil, within sight of the spot of his birth, he sleeps, and calmly does he rest in his cold dwelling place; lightly does the sod press on him; green does the grass grow around his grave, for it is bedewed with the tears of sorrowing friends, in whose memories are treasured the bright recollections of his many virtues.

How sad the thought, that so many of our fellow-members, since last we met, have gone to "that home from whence no traveler returns." It should awake in us a serious reflection.—Those whose prospects for a long life of usefulness seemed bright, and when last we parted, whose hearts were as gay, their laugh as joyous as ours, now have gone, and soon, in the course of nature, must we follow. For indeed, time, like a mighty torrent, carries away successive generations, and all we know of the bright and good who have gone before, comes down to us in song or in story. To pay respect to the memory of the dead has ever been the time-honored custom of all lands and climes; indulged in by the statesman, the philosopher and the sage; claimed as the privilege of the virtuous and the Christian. Let it not be said of us that the departed members of this Convention find their deepest graves in our short memories. Let them not thus pass away. Let not their names "perish from record and recollection." Let not their history be "as a tale that is told," nor "their very monuments become as a ruin."

Mr. Pearsall, of Duplin, said:

MR. PRESIDENT.—If in order, I desire to submit a few remarks in reference to one of the individuals mentioned in the resolution just read. I mean the Rev. David B. Nicholson deceased, late a member of this body, and a delegate from the county of Duplin.

More than twenty years ago, sir, the deceased came to my county, (I think from Franklin) commissioned as a presiding Elder of the Methodist Episcopal Church for the Northern district; and since that time, our interviews have been frequent and familiar. In all my associations with him, I found the consistent, polite, Christian gentleman, and in all the social relations of life regarded him as a man setting up to his professions. And while he was a sage counselor, and meritorious executive officer, he was at the same time a rebuke to evil doers under all circumstances.

Mr. N. officiated in his executive character about eighteen years with marked ability, and continued to occupy the position acceptably up to the time of his death. He married in my immediate neighborhood, and settled in my county, and very soon secured the good will and affection of all who made his acquaintance, and so demanded himself in his ministerial character as to approach to, if not arrive at, the head of his profession in the North Carolina Conference.

Considering his great worth and excellence, and his truly exemplary and Christian character, we have another proof that there is hope beyond the grave, that it is not all of life to live, nor all of death to die.

Mr. Nicholson has left an interesting family, who are clothed in sorrow and sadness at their bereavement.

Death of Hon. George E. Badger.

When men, who have occupied positions of distinction and whose fame is not bounded by the limits of their own State, die, it is peculiarly the province of the press to announce the fact and call attention to the qualities which marked their career. This thought is suggested by the recent death of the Hon. GEORGE E. BADGER, of North Carolina, than whom no greater or purer man adorned the annals of the State that gave him birth. His early life was devoted to the profession of the law in which, as it is well known, he attained the highest distinction. But a mind of the scope and east of his was not permitted to be withheld from the services of his country, and in 1841 he was called to preside over the Navy Department by President HARRISON. He remained in the Cabinet until it was broken up by Mr. TYLER, when he retired voluntarily, preferring to abandon the honors of his station, than to sacrifice a single one of the principles which had guided his life. It has been said he was not a politician. In the sense in which that term is understood he indeed was not, for he scorned the petty arts which are resorted to for success by men of little minds. But in the power to grasp and comprehend all questions and principles connected with the science of government, and to apply them in the administration of affairs, he was a politician than whom his State furnished no superior. It was the consciousness of this that led to his subsequent election to the United States Senate as a Senator from North Carolina, and on this theatre the character of his mind was more fully displayed to his countrymen. The pursuit of truth was with him the result, not less of his moral perceptions, than of the logical structure of his mind. His close and logical reasoning led him always to just results. Hence it was that his opinions on constitutional and international law, sustained as they were by the resources of his great intellect, possessed such weight with his brother Senators. The part he performed in the great debates on the subjects which agitated the country during the time he occupied a seat in the Senate will not soon be forgotten. Abundant material may here be found to construct the fabric of his fame.

Regarding our acts while living as our representatives when we are gone, he so thought and acted as that the influence of his example and the effects of his actions should not be limited to the period of his own life, but should be productive of good even when his name should be blotted out of the catalogue of the living. A statesman thus acting is a blessing to his country and his age.—Tallahassee Floridian.

beneficial results strikingly displayed in the cure of Dyspepsia, Affections of the Liver, Jaundice, Diseases of the Skin, &c.

Another Spring has been discovered in the vicinity of the established one, an accurate scientific analysis of which (given below) proves that it is a valuable Chalybeate. It is a mild and gentle tonic, and in the opinion of the physicians who have examined it, and witnessed its effects in some cases during several seasons, must prove beneficial in Abdominal Dyspepsia, Chronic Nephritis and Neuritic Affections connected with Debility, and of especial service to persons living in a malarial region, whose blood has been clogged of its normal proportion of iron by repeated attacks of malarial fever.

Persons traveling on the Raleigh and Gaston Railroad will always find a fine stage, under the management of Mr. Granger, ready for their accommodation at Warren Depot. Trains will be a daily
